History of the Tanzanian Education Foundation

The Tanzanian Education Foundation is a non-profit organization formed in 2006 by Nicole Miller and Erica Oblinger of Charleston, SC. In 2006, they traveled to the village of Tengeru in Arusha, Tanzania to volunteer as teachers in some local, poverty-stricken schools. Within a month, they had formed a deep appreciation for the African culture and a profound love for the area's children. Each day, Nicole and Erica witnessed the incredibly poor children who possessed great attitudes towards life and an irresistible urge to learn. Upon their return to America, they couldn't evade the desire to continue helping these children. Their altruistic urge led to the development of the Tanzanian Education Foundation.
